

000

QUESTIONS re: MARCH ON WASHINGTON

1. How does our way of looking at Jesus Christ influence our decision about participation in social movements and the manner of our participation?
2. How does our personal response to the question - "Who do you say that I am" - influence our participation in the movement for racial justice?
3. What relevance does the life and teachings of Jesus have for the way in which we participate?
4. Can one discern the living Christ in this or any other mass movement?
5. How might such discernment influence the way in which we participate?
6. What can Quakers bring to the movement for racial justice?
7. Does the committed Christian have something uniquely important to bring? If he is a committed humanist as well. everyone cannot be unique, that is, a group
8. What Biblical guidelines might help?
9. What do Quakers need to learn?