The waterfront on a late June day shows the variety of June weather in Washington, which seems to shift continually from rain to sun to clouds, from hot to cold, from calm to windy, as we make the transition to summer - in other words, perfect for clams and seagulls.

RFK Park will open July 4

Welcome news for Key Peninsulans came from Wayne Gloger of the state Department of Natural Resources who confirmed that Robert F. Kennedy park will open for day use on July 4.

He said about 85% of the work on the park has been completed, with the remainder scheduled to be done over the summer.

The park will be open daily from 6:30 am to dusk.

Shelton firm bids $1 million for DNR timber near Vaughn

Vaughn

by Megan Aprile
A Shelton firm, Olympic Wood Products, was the high bidder for the timber on a 218 acre section of state department of natural resources land near highway 302 as it passes near Vaughn. The bid is subject to confirmation.

The area to be logged contains a central 123 acre thinning area and two areas slated for clear-cutting, one containing 14 acres and another containing 75 acres.

The thinning area contains 2,591 trees identified by the department as old growth Douglas Fir (90 years or older). These trees will be left for later harvest, and the smaller trees less than 11.5" in diameter will be removed. The contract calls for leaving at least 140 of the biggest and best formed trees per acre, with a spacing of at least 18 by 18 feet between them.

The areas scheduled for clear cutting will yield most of the 3 million board feet of Douglas Fir specified in the contract, along with 40,000 board feet of hemlock, 30,000 board feet of cedar, 20,000 board feet of hardwoods and 5,000 board feet of lodgepole pine. Other sections of the land were clearcut in 1978 and 1985.

The clearcut zones do not have specified criteria for leaving green trees or snags, because the contract was approved before new DNR criteria for clear cutting were in place, but Andy Card, DNR unit forester, said that the department works with the cutters to help ensure that some green trees and snags are left in place.

A "Riparian Leave Zone" where no equipment may operate, or trees felled, is specified around the creek running through the land.

Mason County to try transit plan again

SAMPLE BUS TO BE ON VIEW DURING ALLYN DAYS

by Megan Aprile

A group of Mason county residents has formed the Mason County Public Transportation committee, co-chaired by Ralph Lartz and state representative Tim Sheldon, who has been described as a strong advocate of public transportation. Mr. Sheldon also chairs the Economic Development Council in Mason County.

Mason county is the only county this side of the Cascades with no public transportation, and no transit link with surrounding counties. A transit plan proposed three years ago failed at the polls.

Issues raised by opponents to the original plan were that the 40 passenger size of the buses was too large, that routes were inconveniently designed, and that only the southern (Shelton area) part of the county would benefit from the system. There was also opposition to the cost, which was to be funded by a 2/10ths of a cent sales tax, and apparently some concern on the part of some local Allyn and Belfair area business people that a transit system would mean a loss of local business.

The transit plan being developed now has been redesigned with smaller, 12 to 16 passenger buses and a more viable routing system. Other relevant issues will be addressed in detail through a series of public meetings. The funding mechanism, the sales tax of 2/10ths of a cent, will remain the same. If the system passes, Mason county will be eligible to receive matching funds up to $500,000 to run it. One of the smaller passenger buses will be on display during the Allyn Days festival on July 20, which is held at the Allyn Waterfront Park in Allyn.

Committee members say a transit system will allow seniors, who now must rely on volunteers for transportation, access to Bremerton and other areas where they may need to travel to receive medical care, and also would benefit anyone needing the greater mobility a bus system would allow. The decision about when the transit system proposal will appear on the ballot has not yet been made, but the next two possible elections will be in September and November.

A committee spokesman said that a meeting held at Theler Center had gone well, and that some attending the meeting to express their opposition had gone away feeling more positive about the proposed new system.

Letters

To the editor:

What was to have been the tenth annual fireworks show presented by volunteers of the Key Peninsula Firefighters' Association was cancelled following receipt of a request signed by 27 residents of Home, where the show has been presented the past nine years.

Despite the best efforts of the KPFFA, blocking off roads, providing portable toilets and trash receptacles, hiring off-duty Sheriff's deputies, etc. a miniscule number of irresponsible bullies has continued to vandalize, set grass fires, litter, throw firecrackers into crowds, threaten and intimidate residents and other viewers, and in general behave reprehensibly.

Concern for the public safety, that a serious fire or injury might occur, were felt to be more than sufficient reason for termination of the fund-raising show which made possible purchase of a $6500 compressor, an $8500 LifePac-5 defibrillator, an $8500 extrication device ("jaws of life"), some $4000 in dry hydrants at lakes and ponds, cellular phones for ambulances and emergency vehicles, and trauma kits carried by 30 of KPFD's EMTs. The source of those funds is now gone.

At the December 5, 1989, meeting of the Key Peninsula Social Club at the Longbranch Church, several Home residents volunteered to cooperate in an alternative means of raising funds - anything to rid them of their annual nightmare. Hopefully, our whole community will endorse and support whatever efforts are made along these lines.

I hope the following from a recent letter from the anonymous couple who contributed $4119.65 this year (added to some $25,000 contributed in previous years) might serve as inspiration to the many others who so generously contributed to this year's non-show:

"As to this year's contribution ... please keep these funds for equipment which can be of help to our Key Peninsula community. While (we) will not make any additional contributions for a couple of years, please contact (us) thereafter and (we) will certainly give careful consideration to your needs for the benefit of all of us.

"Please extend our most sincere thanks to the fine (firefighters) who trained and worked so hard to put on such a wonderful fireworks show for our community and to all those who gave their support and financial help to your fine and protective efforts."

An item high on KPFFA's wish list is "Multi-injury Annie," a mannequin providing realistic training in trauma assessment. "Annie" can simulate blood hemorrhaging experienced in traumatic injuries and enable our paramedics and EMT/Ds to sharpen skills in assessments of patients in cardiac arrest, verification of ventricular fibrillation, employment of our heart monitors, and the defibrillation of patients in myocardium to restore heart, blood and pulse rhythms restorative of life. Hopefully, we will find a source of funds for this lifesaver.

Personally, I find it outrageous that we've allowed a handful of sleazy churls to destroy the pleasure brought to so many kids of all ages at our annual celebrations. Al Capone grabbed Chicago and Hitler seized Germany with similar tactics, so there is historical precedence. But it is a pity, isn't it?

To the editor:

I heard something the other day and thought my neighbors here on the Key Peninsula should know about it.

During the course of my job I often spend hours aloft in a helicopter. This last time I had the opportunity to chit-chat with my pilot and told him I had a place on the Key Peninsula and I liked it very much because it is rural and uncrowded. His reply was for me to get ready for that Geuss what? Our new caretakers have arrived. Their names are Todd and Emily Speelman and if you have a spare moment, stop by and say hello.

We had a terrific potluck going away dinner for Dan and Joanne Baldwin. We wish them good luck in their new job in Carnation!

I want to thank all of you who have supported the Civic Center. Continuing support, be it monetary or donated time, will keep us going.

The Swap Meet (giant garage sale) is on the 13th with still plenty of table space available. Besides all the good cast-off recycled items, there will be food concessions for all you hungry souls.

Pioneer Day on August 3 will have plenty of entertainment including a traveling exhibit from the Pacific Science Center and, hopefully, a concert area on the grass with picnic tables. If you have a table you can loan us for the day, bring it on Friday and pick it up on Saturday night. Please mark your name on the table. Security will be there on Friday evening.

As you all know, roller skating is over for the summer. This fall the new managers will begin a new format for the coming year.

We will all be very busy during the next few months with the Swap Meet and Pioneer Days, so if you have some time you would like to donate, please call me at 884-9821.

Proceeds of the sale will be used by the Committee to Continue the EMS Levy, to make the public aware of the need in our area for continued emergency medical services and paramedic services. Key Peninsula emergency medical services are funded mainly through the levy, which comes before the voters every six years. This year it will be on the ballot on Tuesday, September 17.

Those with items they wish to donate to the sale may contact co-chairman Bob Cole at 884-3660, committee vice-chairman Howard Wilson at 857-5701, or committee chairperson Ruth Bramhall at 857-5184. Marty Pederson is also a co-chairman of the parking lot sale and a member of the EMS levy committee.

The Key Peninsula Lions' Volkssport Club is holding its third annual Volksmarch on July 6 and 7 at Penrose Point State Park. The event, sanctioned by the American Volkssport Association is featured in the Pathfinder, the official bi-monthly bulletin of the Evergreen State Volkssport Association, and is expected - weather cooperating - to draw some 1,000 avid volksmarchers.

The Club's first volkssport Burley Lagoon, drew all some from as far away "Historic Home" some 750 walkers.

The Key Peninsula Fire Department Master Plan Committee will meet monthly on the fourth Wednesday. In November and December, meetings will be held the third Wednesday, to avoid conflict with the holiday season. The committee will conduct a tour of fire department facilities on July 13.

The group's next regular meeting will be July 24 at District Headquarters' station in Key Center. All meetings are open to the public. If you have ideas you wish to share concerning what KPFD should plan for over the next five years, you are invited to participate. For information, call KPFD Headquarters (884-2222).

Family History Center opens

A Family History Center is now open at the LDS Church - 134th & Highway 302 (across from Macon Bacon) Thursdays 10 am to 4 pm.

The largest collection of family history records are stored in granite vaults in the mountains east of Salt Lake City, the records of nearly two billion people who have lived on the earth.

Genealogy has long been associated with tedious, painstaking search and dusty books. But no more. Now we have available a modern miracle called Family Search. Family Search is a powerful, innovative computer system. After typing in a name of an ancestor, Family Search, in just a few moments races through millions of names and finds any that match what is typed.

Park Commissioners set new hearing on sludge

by Megan Aprile

Preliminary clearing, burning and grading work on the proposed new field at Volunteer Park has begun, but the proposal by the City of Tacoma Sewer Utility Division to apply sludge to the field will be reheard at the next park board meeting on July 10.

After a public hearing at the May park district meeting, which was attended by City of Tacoma Sewer Utility Division, Pierce County Health Department and Washington State University personnel, park commissioners voted to authorize the City of Tacoma sewer utility division to proceed with the permit process to apply solid and liquid sludge to the site as a fertilizer.

CITIZEN CONCERNS

At the June meeting of the Key Peninsula Park and Recreation district, several people addressed the commissioners with their concerns about the proposed application of sludge on the new field.

Those concerns were that run-off from the field might affect the well at Key Peninsula Middle School, that the middle school is too close to the proposed site for the safe use of sludge, and that the method of application is not safe.

SCHOOL DISTRICT RESPONSE

Jack Sinclair of Peninsula School district said that the 399 foot deep well at the middle school is about 275 feet away from the field.

He said he had written to the Washington state health department, the federal Environmental Protection Agency and the Pierce county health department about the proposed use of the sludge on the field. He said that if the state Department of Ecology had any interest, he would write to them as well.

The letters, along with a drawing showing the direction of slope and the relationship of the well to the field, ask what the school district response to this proposal should be to concerned parents, citizens and school staff members; what the district response should be to the Key Peninsula park district as to the plan; what future practices, if any, may increase or decrease risk; and any future practices the district should perform to prevent problems. Mr. Sinclair said he did not know how long it would take to get a response from each of the agencies.

ANOTHER SLUDGE PRODUCT

Sinclair said Peninsula district uses another type of sludge product on school playfields.

The product, called Nutrimulch™ is a composted material purchased from a Puyallup company.

Nutrimulch™ is residential sewage sludge mixed with sawdust (10% sludge to 90% sawdust), which is composted to kill off pathogens.

Mr. Sinclair said the district purchased the product because it was an inexpensive and effective way to add enough body to sandy soils so that grass could be grown that was durable enough to withstand the constant use that a playfield gets.

He said the results with Nutrimulch were very good, and that the product is used extensively in landscaping.

NEW FIELD PROPOSAL

The proposal for the new field at the park is for the application of solid sludge from industrial and residential sewage that would be rototilled into the soil and the spraying of liquified sludge with the grass seed.

The sludge is put through a composting process which kills most of the pathogens. Access to the field would be limited for one year while the remaining bacteria were killed off through natural processes.

The City of Tacoma Sewer Utility Division would be the suppliers of the sludge and would apply it at no charge. Spokesmen for the City of Tacoma said at the May hearing that they were interested in the project as a demonstration for this type of usage for sludge.

The sludge plant, which is located in Tacoma, conducts many types of microbiological tests on the sludge and is monitored by the state and county.

The new field would also be monitored by the health department. The health department also determines the conditions of the permit and requires that an extensive environmental checklist about conditions at the site be completed to receive the permit.

SOURCES OF SLUDGE

The Clean Water Act passed by Congress in 1972 requires municipalities to clean wastewater before discharging it into the environment.

Wastewater treatment generates sludge, which in turn must be used or disposed of.

According to a federal pamphlet titled Use and Disposal of Municipal Wastewater Sludge, "the need for effective sludge management is continual and growing. The quantity of municipal sludge produced annually has almost doubled since 1972..."

"Municipalities currently generate approximately 6.2 million dry metric tons of wastewater sludge a year, or approximately 56 dry pounds per person per year. Sludge production is expected to about double to approximately 13 million dry tons per year by the year 2000 as the population increases."

The five major sludge uses are land application, distribution and marketing of sludge products, landfilling, incineration, and ocean disposal.

Representatives of all the parties involved will be at the July 10 meeting to answer questions and concerns. The meeting will begin at 7:30 pm and is open to the public.

Route 3 slated for improvements

The portion of state route 3 running between Allyn and Belfair, which has been plagued with sections of sinking pavement, is slated for permanent repair. Although the problem has been studied extensively, a series of temporary repairs were ineffective and the sinking sections sometimes dropped as much as six inches in a day.

The state Department of Transportation (DOT) has promised a report by the end of August of this year about how permanent repairs can be made after receiving an informal petition signed by 1200 local residents. The petition was presented to the Port Orchard DOT office in March by Dallas Behnke, a local businessman and organizer of the petition drive. The petition had the support of the North Mason Chamber of Commerce, the Allyn Chamber of Commerce and the Allyn Community Association.

Mr. Behnke said he felt the state "should be given every opportunity to satisfy our transportation needs," and said the fact that DOT was currently taking drill corings of the site was very encouraging. He noted that the Mason County Commissioners had given a formal statement of support for the SR 3 improvements. He also said that representative Tim Sheldon had given his support for the project and that with the state legislature back in session, discretionary funds that can be utilized for this project could be applied for.

Failing septicics mean no shellfishing in North Bay

by Megan Aprile

At a recent public meeting Mason County Department of Health personnel notified Allyn residents that it is unsafe to catch shellfish in the waters of North Bay. The Allyn Waterfront Park and a local oyster company have both been posted with signs.

People eating shellfish from North Bay waters run the risk of contracting any waterborn disease. Examples of waterborn diseases are strep throat, cholera and typhoid, all serious illnesses.

The problem became apparent when state and county health department monitoring of North Bay waters showed continuous high bacteria counts.

Since there is no industry, no agricultural activity, and no marina which can serve as sources of point pollution, personnel from the two agencies did a sanitary survey of all the residential septic systems.

Health department personnel went from house to house and checked each septic system by opening tank access, running water and checking all the down slope surface and drainage to see where effluent might emerge. An alternate method used was to place a fluorescent green dye in the toilet and charcoal packets in the suspected outbreaks in the system. The charcoal packets were later picked up and checked for dye residue.

After the survey was completed, 40 out of 120 septic systems, mostly along the waterfront at Allyn, were found to have failed. The failed systems were then prioritized, with a rating between 1 and 4, with 1 being the worst.

Tom Anderson of Mason County Water Quality said the reason for the drainfield failures was that the soils were just not conducive to drainfields. He said a lot of the waterfront property at Allyn is built on fill and behind bulkheads, making run-off pollution very probable.

Residents whose systems have failed have all been notified, and those with failed systems must submit a redesign proposal. The time frame for the completion of redesign work is determined by the rating.

Financial help in the form of loans or grants is available from the state revolving fund. For more information on financial aid, call 427-9670, extension 292.

to end, as the week before he had been flying a very powerful developer over the peninsula who kept saying over and over, "Look at all the empty land," and "I can't believe all that raw land!"

I have seen growth and I live in fear of it. The last town I lived in became so crowded and the quality of life went from something very pleasant to having to wait in line for everything, that I had to move. Now it looks like the same developers are coming here.

The last town got so bad that we had to wait in line for all the services, gasoline, traffic, post office, city and county assistance, but what made me move was calling 911 and being put on hold.

Growth has two very sharp edges to its sword.

To the editor:

What is the Park Department plan of dumping T.H.W.S. on our grounds and water systems?!

Tacoma Human Waste Sludge, so improved it needs warnings - Don't let humans and animals on it for a year. To a local grower using it - Don't sell the vegetables touching the ground. What else should we know?

Why does the state test the grower's well once a year? And why experiment near a school with 500 students? Also, near Volunteer Park. If the ground is unsafe, why would they want it near our kids?

Sports fans, players, ask the Park Department Wednesday, July 10 at 7:30. See you.

To the editor:

It is often said "Death and Taxes are the only two things you can count on." For myself, I never did figure out the lesser of the two evils. Taxes always seem to go up and rarely do we seem to see much benefit from them. Nearly all of us have life insurance we hope to delay collecting on. Very few of us ever do collect on our own.

All of us in Fire District #16 have a sort of combined life insurance, medical policy, and tax all rolled into one which has allowed many of us to see a return on our taxes, and the use of our medical, instead of life insurance.

The ambulance and paramedic service of our Fire Department can only exist as long as we pay for them - probably one of the cheapest taxes we will ever have. The only one I don't mind paying, with the hope I never use the service.

I know my family will all be voting YES to continue the EMS levy.

Phone poll shows support for separate funding for park, civic center

In our second KP NEWS phone poll, we asked you if you thought separate funding for Volunteer Park and the Civic Center was a good idea. Your answer was a resounding yes. 100% of our callers said yes, separate funding for the two is a good idea. At the special park district meeting held June 26 to adopt the proposed 1992-93 budget, the park commissioners officially adopted the budgets for the two facilities.

Pierce county election requirements are that maintenance and operation monies must be listed as a single item, but the park district can adopt the use of a line item budget in which all funds are allocated to the expense categories of each facility. In a line item budget, any change in the amount spent must be voted by the commissioners.

Purdy detachment sergeant is promoted

Sergeant Bill Seewer of the Pierce County Sheriff's Department, and our local officer at the Purdy detachment was recently promoted to Lieutenant.

CAC president Hugh McMillan pins on his new badge as his fellow officers look on.

Lt. Seewer was a staunch supporter of CAC from its inception. He will now be serving in Lakewood.

EMS levy continuance will appear on September ballot.

by Hugh McMillan

Members of the Committee to Continue the EMS Levy have visited with community groups to answer questions and to explain the importance of continuing the current level of emergency medical services (EMS) provided by the Key Peninsula Fire Department.

An essential part of the funding for EMS is provided by six year levies which began in 1979 and received voter approval for continuation in 1985. To continue after December 31, 1991, the levy must receive sixty percent voter approval on September 17, the day of the primary election. The levy is for 25¢ per $1,000 of property evaluation, or, on a $100,000 home for example, $25 per year.

Committee members emphasize that this is not a new tax, it is merely continuation of a measure that has been with us for almost 12 years and which requires renewal at this time in order for the Fire Department to maintain its excellent award winning emergency medical service to the community.

Of the 1,173 emergencies to which KPFDF responded in 1990, 725 were for medical emergencies. Although the number of responses in 1990 was almost three times the number recorded in 1980, cost to the taxpayer remains at 25 cents per $1,000.

The levy has the unanimous endorsement of KPFDF's Board of Fire Commissioners, Firefighters' Association, Firefighters Local 3152, and Dr. William Roes and the Board of the KP Health Center.

If you or your group would like to learn more about the levy, please call Chief Horace Kanno (884-2222), or committee members: Keith Stiles (884-3379), Ruth Bramhall (857-5184), Randy Carr (884-2724), Robert Cole (884-3660), Gary Ostlund (857-6474), Marty Pedersen (884-4211), Walt Schmidt (884-3325), Don Tjossem (884-9345), or Howard Wilson (857-5701).

This class is a continuation of work done as artists in residence at Evergreen elementary and includes work with wood, bark, natural and recycled materials. The class will be held Tuesdays in the VFW room at the Center from 1 pm to 3 pm, beginning July 9, and continuing throughout the summer. The program is designed for children in grades 2 through 5 and can accommodate up to 15 children. There is a charge of $8 per session and advance registration is required, with a minimum of 10 students required.

Students will have the opportunity to use Macintosh™ computers, learn some word processing and desktop publishing skills, plus gain hands-on experience in actually putting together a newspaper. The charge for the class, which will meet for the first two weeks in August on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, is $20, limit ten students.

Making the most of a child's summer

by Keith Stiles,
Peninsula School Board

One of the really important changes in education these days is the way school officials and parents are looking at the way children use their time in the summer.

First is the realization that our children will have to compete in a world that is growing exceedingly difficult and complex. Greater jobs skills will not only be desirable for them, they will be absolutely necessary.

Second is the reality that some children here in the United States and elsewhere in the world are already attending school almost year-round. As our country enters further into an overall world economy, our children will find themselves in competition with these students both for acceptance into college and for jobs.

And third, children can lose study skills over the summer months, and teachers must spend valuable time in the early part of the following school year getting them "back up to speed."

It is important that parents look upon the summer as a time for their children to enjoy and participate in physical activities and to continue to sharpen their academic work whenever possible. Learning is a life-long process, and parents have the chance to help their kids move ahead over the summer months.

While every family's summer cannot be the same, there are a couple of suggestions that could be helpful. First, there should be a plan for the entire summer. Most children like to know what is expected of them, and when it is going to happen. Secondly, children should have activities they can remember and value. When they look backwards later, what will they be able to remember learning?

Here are some of the summer options:

Peninsula School District Summer School starts on July 8. Call the summer school office at Peninsula High School, 857-3511.

The Key Center Library has a story-telling program for children 6 and up and summer reading opportunities for kids of all ages. Call the library at 884-2242 for information, and try to get the kids to the library on a regular basis.

Many different job skill opportunities are open during the summer at Kitsap Vocational Skills Center in Bremerton for students from our area. Call the Skills Center at 478-5083 for additional information.

Children have every right to go back to school in September able to talk about a busy and successful summer and with learning adventures to share with others. Your Peninsula schools will be looking forward to their return just about nine weeks from now!

This year's graduation message is from a letter written by Sally Bender to her departing fifth graders. Sally teaches a special program with students from all over Peninsula district.

"At times, I have been the teacher, showing you what I know and leading in directions to discover answers on your own. Many times you have been the teacher, and I the student.

"I hope that you carry these thoughts with you as you continue on your journey of discovering who you are;

"Leave the earth a little better than it is. Take care of the animals, the plants, the air and the water. This earth is so fragile that it needs your help. Please do not ever forget that.

"Take care of yourself. Make sure you eat right, get rest and exercise. Remember, your body is fragile too, and you only get one.

"Be good to each other. Remember we are all in this together. If you have a chance to help someone, do it. Be tolerant of others and their belief systems. Try to understand why someone is different before you judge him or her by your standards. Be open to change and new ideas. Please do not be content to coast through life. You are too valuable to waste your time doing that.

"Believe in yourself and your own capabilities. If there is something about yourself that you do not like, then change it. You have that power."

Tug of War challenge

Traditionally, the glorious, heroic firefighters of district 16 issue a challenge to the nondescript, weakling firefighters of surrounding districts to meet them in the Salatino Memorial mud pit, so that they can be roundly defeated.

This kind of thrilling victory is not limited to firefighters. If your organization would like to issue a tug-of-war challenge to another group to do the mud thing, call the Civic Center at 884-3456 to get yourselves entered.

Longtime residents will give a program

A new feature of Pioneer Day this year will be a program given by many of our longtime residents about the old days, followed by a question and answer period from the audience. Participants include Bill Otto and Henry Stock, who grew up in the Victor/Rocky Bay area.

Bring the kids, and don't miss this opportunity to hear about the past in person, from those who lived through it. Check your Pioneer Day issue, coming next month for details.

A buddy of our just had one of those winter/summer romances. She was in the summer of her youth and he was in the winter of his bank account.

The drunk accidentally staggered into the zoo and ended up in front of the hippopotamus' cage on his may home.

"Don't look at me like that, honey," he yelled. "I can explain everything."

Scenic Beaches

Our art theme this month was "scenic beaches" and we received such nice work that it seemed only fair to highlight it. Enjoy.

It's Another Super Good Cents story...

When Larry and Mary Jane Popp started looking for their retirement home, they already knew they wanted a heat pump, because of the great energy savings and comfort so many of their friends had experienced. They found the setting they were looking for at The Lakes development near Purdy. While discussing options, they were asked "Would you like a Super Good Cents home?" At the time, Larry and Mary Jane had "never heard of that before," but they asked questions, and found that by purchasing the Super Good Cents option package they could get:

- R-38 Insulation in ceilings
- R-19 insulation in walls
- R-33 Insulation under the floor
- vinyl thermopane windows filled with argon gas
- wrapped furnace pipes
- and
- $2,000 back!

Larry and Mary Jane Popp enjoy the comfort and low energy costs of their new home in The Lakes.

After hearing the facts, Larry and Mary Jane said sure! Today, they, and their dogs Mindy and Nikki are enjoying the comfort of their new home. Even without the heat pump, their home would cost them less than $200 a year to heat. With the heat pump, the cost is less than $150. How complicated was it to accomplish all this?

The Pops told their salesman they wanted the Super Good Cents option. When their manufactured home was delivered, a Peninsula Light consultant came out to inspect it to make sure the specifications were correct, the last of three inspections for quality control, and shortly afterwards, the Pops received their $2,000 check in the mail.

If you are considering the purchase of a mobile or manufactured home, ask about the Super Good Cents option. Like Larry and Mary Jane, you'll find that you get outstanding quality and energy efficiency for a small price.

This recipe is a perennial favorite, and I highly recommend it for a fourth of July treat.

Strawberry Spring Thaw

- 1/2 c. melted butter
- 1/4 c. brown sugar
- 1 c. flour
- 1 c. chopped walnuts
- 2 large egg whites
- 1 c. sugar
- 1 pint fresh strawberries, washed, hulled, sliced
- 1 tbsp. lemon juice
- 1 c. heavy cream
- 1 tsp. vanilla

Stir melted butter and brown sugar in cake pan. With fork mix in flour and chopped nuts. Distribute evenly in pan and bake at 400° for 5-10 minutes, until lightly browned. Break up lumps and set aside.

Beat 2 egg whites to soft peaks in largest bowl of electric stand mixer (you cannot do this dessert with a hand mixer), gradually add sugar. Mix in strawberries for a second or two and then add lemon juice and vanilla. Cover top of mixer with dish towel (to prevent splatters) and beat at high speed until stiff peaks form. This will take quite a time - as much as 15 minutes. Whip heavy cream and fold in carefully.

Spread 3/4 of crumbs into 9-inch springform pan. Carefully fill springform pan with strawberry mixture and top with remaining crumbs. Freeze for three hours or until firm.

This dessert can be made as much as one week ahead of time and kept in freezer, covered with metal foil. Remove springform pan just before serving. Place frozen mousse on serving dish and slice with serrated knife. With a few fresh strawberry garnishes, this is truly a spectacular dessert.

Outdoor Safety seminar

A free seminar titled "Staying Healthy in the Outdoors," will be held Wednesday, July 10 at 7 pm in Silverdale.

The program, sponsored by the Silverdale Medical Center Council Group Health Cooperative, will feature Dr. Guy Earle, an urgent care physician.

Earle will address how you and your family can prevent accidents and health hazards when camping or hiking, as well as what to include in a wilderness first aid kit.

The seminar, which is open to the general public, will be held in the classroom of Group Health's Silverdale Medical Center, 10452 Silverdale Way NW. For more information call Anne Key at 692-3880, extension 6067.

Civic Center Caretakers

Goodbye, Dan and Joanne Baldwin. (Shown at left at their going-away potluck dinner.) During the time that Dan and Joanne were caretakers, they made so many repairs and improvements to the Civic Center that it would be impossible to list them all. The care they took of the flower beds was probably the most noticeable example of the quality of their work, but they took excellent care of the building; many times in circumstances that were difficult. We wish them success in their new position as caretakers for a girl scout camp in Carnation.

New caretakers Todd and Emily Spelman have recently taken over as caretakers at the Civic Center. The Spelmans previously operated a janitorial business. The Spelmans were officially welcomed at the potluck dinner as well.

At Respite Care we receive many compliments and pats on the back but the truth of the matter is that the people of Key Peninsula are not using the Program to its capacity and availability. This makes us concerned for the future of the program.

We have recently received a grant from the Area on Aging Agency secured through the efforts of Richard Gormley and Ruth Bramhall, both officers on the Key Peninsula Health Board.

This grant will provide financial aid to anyone in our area who needs it to have a family member cared for professionally at the Health Center in the Respite Care program.

Pauline Longley, our Respite Care director has tendered her resignation which will be effective at the end of July.

Our director and volunteers have been of the highest caliber, a real credit to the community. It is always hard to make a change, but as in the past, the new people come in with fresh ideas and enthusiasm which keeps the whole concept working.

Pauline Longley has been an excellent director. She has the rare combination of talents as an artist with the skills and experience of a trained R.N. It will be hard to fill her shoes and we will miss her.

Our charter member, Maryanna Johanson, is leaving to live in a nursing home due to her deteriorating health. This leaves three regular patients in the main care group. Does this trouble you as much as it does us?

Respite has been an ongoing program for nearly eight years. It is held in the Brones room once a week on Wednesday from 9 am to 4 pm. We have four directors and many wonderful volunteers. It has been providing a fun, stimulating, safe and loving place for your family member that needs supervision and allows the major caregiver a few hours to pursue personal projects, be it a trip to the hair salon, dentist, or just to have some private moments to take a nap secure in the knowledge that your loved one is in good hands.

Now we have come to a crossroad. We need you, the people of our community, to let us know your feelings about the future of Respite in Key Center. Will you use this service? Will you come forth as volunteers?

You can call the Health Center at 884-9221 or Ruth Bramhall at 857-5184 or Frankie Johnson at 884-4102. We are awaiting your answers and are still waiting for you Every Wednesday.

by William F. Roes, MD

This summer when you go on vacation, try creating a memory with your nose. No, I don't mean pressing it into wet concrete at Grauman's Chinese Theater in Hollywood, but you can use your sense of smell to capture a place and time in your memory. I call this an olfactory snapshot; let me explain.

The sense of smell is the function of the first cranial nerve, the olfactory nerve, which is actually an extension of the neurons of the brain. The receptors cover about a square inch at the roof of the nasal cavity. Studies show that man can distinguish about 4000 odors, and although man's sense of smell is poorly developed compared to other animals, you can distinguish garlic oil at one-millionth of a milligram in a liter of air.

Possibly because there are relatively few odors we can distinguish, as well as the direct connection to some of the oldest parts of the brain, olfactory stimuli (smells) often evoke powerful memories. For example, many people associate the smell of burning leaves with a Fall day from their childhood, or the smell of a skunk evokes memories of an ill-fated camping trip. I propose you use this olfactory memory to capture a piece of this year's vacation by associating it with a new smell. My wife and I went to Hawaii a few years back and picked up a sunscreen with a new and distinct odor. Now, every time I use it (which hasn't been often this year) I automatically think of that trip. The concept may be trivial, but I thought it was interesting, and I was able to squeeze an article out of it.

Anyhow — enjoy your vacation and the smells of summer, and please be careful over the Holiday. Have a safe and sane Fourth of July.

BUSINESS ASSOCIATION

In one year, the average Pierce County household discards 1300 paper items, 500 aluminum cans and 500 glass bottles.

Your used newspapers, placed in the Lions' collection bin near the Pierce Transit bus stop in Key Center, will help the Lions help local residents with sight and hearing problems who otherwise might not be able to afford glasses and hearing aids.

In the library

'Tis the season to be grateful: the Key Center Library received a gift of $500 from the Angel Guild to purchase books. Some of the titles that have arrived are: Book of North American Birds; Totem Poles; Encyclopedia of Pottery Techniques; Country Diary Book of Stencilling; Lincoln on Democracy; Mushrooms of North America; Natural Health, Natural Medicine; It's a matter of Survival; Ruth Skitch Henderson's Seasons in the Country; Encyclopedia of Mysterious Places; Country Home Book; Entertaining; Martha Stewart's Pies and Tarts.

Thank you very much to the Angel Guild.

Also, at a time when the periodical budget reduced the number of titles in the library, individuals and organizations in the community have come to the rescue. These are the magazine titles that have been added to the collection since March 1991: American Indian Art; American Rifleman; *Back Home; Backpacker; Forbes; Free Inquiry; Garbage, the Practical Journal for the Environment; Home Education; Humanist; Nation; Orion, People and Nature; Soviet Life; Travel and Leisure; True West.

Back Home* was recently started by the group of people who created Mother Earth News. The latter was suspended in late 1990.

The Pierce County Library System will be closed Thursday, July 4.

Art Exhibition

The 38th annual Southwest Washington Exhibition opened in May at the Washington State Capital museum in Olympia. The juried exhibition will run through July 7 and features artists from thirteen southwestern Washington counties. The sixty-five piece exhibition is co-sponsored by the Olympia Art League and the Washington State Capital museum and has watercolors, oils, prints, sculptures and mixed media pieces.

The Olympia Art League is open to amateur and professional artists, and to persons who have an active and sustained interest in, and support for, the arts. Organized in the 1940's, Art League membership was restricted to women artists for almost two decades.

The Washington State Capital Museum is located at 211 West 21st Avenue in Olympia. For more information call 753-2580.

Telephones

For many of the years I lived in Home, making a long distance phone call was a nerve-shattering experience. Because the phone system was so unreliable, I would go over to Lakebay, where "Central" was located. With an experienced operator to do most of the scientific part of the work, things usually went smoothly. I always felt like I had worked all day, however, and was glad when it was over.

Today was sort of a rerun of the old days, but not because of poor equipment. Just the opposite. Too much equipment would be more likely.

I wanted to get a copy of a check on file with my bank since about 1988. The nice girl said, "No problem." She gave me an 800 number. Another nice girl said, "No problem." The check would reach me in about 3 working days. That was Friday. A week later a card came. She had been unable to reach me by phone. So, would I call her and she had typed out an 800 number. Then the fun began.

That sweet-voiced tape said, "Hang up and dial again." I did with the same result. I dialed carefully for sure. Same lecture. After one more failure, I called the operator. She said that was not a working number, but she got another for me. Dialed that, asked by the extension and, lo, there was sweet Julie. I almost fell off my stool. She explained that since the bank had changed it's name, I would have to give the original account number before they could give the check to me. I told her nicely that it was not necessary that I have the check after all, and thanks.

Special budget session

As we went to press, Senator Bob Oke confirmed that the House and Senate were close to agreement on the next biennium's budget. Senator Oke said: "I think by Monday (July 1), people be able to breathe easy - their legislators will be back at home trying to earn a living."

Along with a two year operating budget for the 1991-93 biennium, which begins July 1, the Legislature also had to approve two year budgets for capital construction and the transportation system and a supplemental budget for the remainder of the 1989-91 biennium.

$140 million was made available to budgeteers when the updated state revenue forecasts became available.

K-12 education and the Washington State Department of Wildlife received considerable support.

Education, a special priority, was awarded $10 million of the extra funds in general grants. The capital budget was modified and $7.1 million given to the Wildlife Department. In addition, a 20 percent fee increase in license fees will be charged to hunters and fishers and a special $10 raise in the price of vanity plates has been approved to support non-game species.

The Washington Department of Wildlife has been funded primarily by hunting and fishing license fees, and Director Curt Smitch said the existing fee structure is not keeping up with the demands placed on wildlife management. He said human population is growing by 60,000 to 70,000 per year and wildlife habitat is vanishing at a rate of 30,000 acres per year.

Oke to serve on ferries study committee

State senator Bob Oke has been selected by the chairman of the Senate Transportation Committee to represent his colleagues on the State Ferries Tariff Reform Policy Committee.

The committee was established by the Washington State Transportation Commission to be a resource and sounding board for the commissioners as they begin a study which could result in major changes to the current ferry rate structure.

Salary increases for elected officials

The Washington Citizens Commission on salaries for elected officials voted to increase elected officials' salaries in two stages over the next two years, with increases on Sept. 3, 1991, and on Sept. 3, 1992.

That law states, "it shall be the policy of this state to base salaries of elected state officials on realistic standards in order that such officials may be paid according to the duties of their offices and so that citizens of the highest quality may be attracted to public service."

Leonard Nord, chairman of the commission, said, "The demands placed on state lawmakers are increasing rapidly, and we are reaching a point where only retirees, the wealthy and a few individuals with generous employers will be able to afford to serve in the legislature. We have an obligation to make service in the legislature a viable option for all citizens."

The 15-member salary commission was established in 1986 through a voter approved constitutional amendment. Eight of the members are selected by lot by the Secretary of State from each of the state's eight congressional districts. The remaining seven are selected jointly by the speaker of the House of Representatives and the president of the Senate.

The salary changes approved by the commission are as follows:

The governor's current salary of $99,600 will be raised to $112,000; the superintendent of public instruction's salary of $71,900 will be raised to $80,500; a legislator's salary of $19,900 will be raised to $23,200; and a district court judge's salary of $76,600 will be raised to $85,700.

A citizens petition drive to stop the increases has already been signed by about 75,000 people around the state.

How to check your pressure canner

Now is a good time to check your pressure canner to make sure it is in good working order before the canning season arrives. The accuracy of dial gauges should be checked before each canning season.

If an inaccurate gauge results in too low a processing temperature it could mean the vegetables you put up will not be safe to eat, or it could cause you to overcook and diminish the quality of your food. The temperature must reach 240 degrees F. to kill some disease-causing organisms.

Replace your dial canner gauge if it reads high by more than one pound at 5, 10 or 15 pounds of pressure to ensure food safety. On the other hand, if your gauge reads low your food may be safe but you will over process it and lower its quality. Low readings also could indicate that the gauge is unpredictable.

Call the Pierce County Cooperative Extension office for information on where to get the dial gauge tested.

Nicked or dried gaskets will allow steam leaks during pressurization. Keep them clean between uses. Gaskets in older canner models may require a light coating of vegetable oil once a year. Newer models are pre-lubricated and so will not benefit from oiling.

Replacement gauges and other parts for pressure canners usually are available from stores that sell the equipment.

Cooperative Extension programs and information are available to all citizens of Pierce County without discrimination.

Joe Kallio and his son-in-law Richard Johnke are partners in their newly formed business, Housecalls Traveling Mechanics. Joe said he got the idea while remembering his experiences as a cattle rancher and the trouble he had finding a mechanic who would come and fix broken tractors.

The company has two diesel engine and four gasoline engine mechanics, so they "will fix everything," according to Joe. "We'll give them a good job, and treat them right," he continued. As far as the work goes, "we guarantee it." Joe Kallio was raised here, and later moved to Colorado where he was involved in cattle ranching. He moved back to the area two and a half years ago and says he's very happy to be back.

Bill Greer started his log home business seven years ago in Texas. He has recently opened Timberidge Homes in Key Center. Mr. Greer learned his techniques by visiting many of the old style log homes in Tennessee and examining the methods used. Bill says the old builders used heart wood, as he does because the outer bark serves as channels for the sap, making it more porous and attractive to insects, whereas the heart or inner wood (about the inside 12" in a 30" tree, is dense and not subject to absorbing moisture. His homes are built from pre-sawn lumber, with each piece designed to fit exactly. The Greers moved to the Key Peninsula "mostly by accident," but Bill says that they're "tickled to death" that they found the Key Peninsula. Bill and his wife Evelyn live in Wauna. They have two sons, Mark, 35 and Jack, 16.

Jim Roy and Suzanne Dircks have been working for the last two years on a pretty big project; converting the lower level of their home to offices. They have now opened the Key Center Institute at their Wauna home. The type of work done by the two counselors is neurolinguistic programming (NLP). Originally discovered by hypnotherapists, NLP is based on the concept of teaching a person new internal strategies. Dr. Roy says this process can be used for everything from spelling problems to anger to dealing with traumatic events. Dr. Roy specializes in anxiety, trauma and phobia therapy. Suzanne Dircks does counseling, including working with children and issues around divorce. She also will serve as a mediator between divorcing parents or in other family disputes.

The couple found this "ideal location" while looking through a real estate magazine they picked up on a camping trip. The pictured log home ultimately became theirs. They have been moving their current counseling business in Tacoma, and plan to offer seminars and workshops as well as counseling.

The Key Peninsula Business Association (KPBA) was organized in 1987, with the purpose of promoting and improving local businesses and services, and to serve as a positive addition to the community.

Since that time, the Association has worked on many worthwhile projects, including the successful lobbying for state and county signs with directions to Key Center on SR 302 and the Key Peninsula Highway; and the design and purchase of the "Welcome to the Key Peninsula" sign on the Wauna Spit. The sign was erected in 1989 in conjunction with the Washington state centennial.

The Association also publishes the visitors guide each year. The guide, which

Just as importantly, the Association is involved all through the year in helping and serving Key Peninsula residents, and has even added some valuable community traditions.

Summer on the Key Peninsula brings Pioneer Day. The Association came to the aid of the Key Peninsula Civic Center in 1987, by putting on the Pioneer Day celebration when the Civic Center Association was unable to do it. The Association has continued to chair and organize the parade each year since.

In the fall, the Association sponsors the "Autumn Apple Squeeze" at Lake Kathryn Shopping Mall.

The annual Christmas Tree Lighting Celebration, which includes a visit from Santa himself, was first held in 1987, and takes place each Christmas season at the KC Corral in Key Center. In addition, as a Christmas present to the community, Association members pay for the center-fold ad in the Key Peninsula NEWS which shows Santa's routes (which he runs thanks to fire district 16 personnel) on the Key Peninsula.

We meet at 7:30 am on the first and third Fridays at the Huckleberry Inn in Key Center. New members are always welcome. If you are in business and interested in the community, come and join us!

$ Tax Tips $

by R. Marvin Keizur

Even though your son or daughter has a well-paying summer job, you may still be able to claim a dependency exemption for the child on your income tax return. The main requirements are:

The child must be under age 19 or a full-time student, and you must provide more than half of the total amount spent to support the child. Support includes food, shelter, clothing, tuition, medical and dental care and other basic needs.

To be considered a full-time student, the child must be enrolled on a full-time basis in a qualified institution of higher learning for at least some portion of each of five months of the year.

Your child can earn up to $3,400 this year without paying any federal income tax ($5,400 if the child puts $2,000 in an IRA).

By writing the word "exempt" on line 6 of the W-4 form provided by the employer, your child can avoid having federal income tax withheld from his wages. He won't have to file a tax return and therefore wait for a refund as long as he stays within the guidelines. Conditions are that the child must have had no income tax liability for 1990 and must expect to have no tax liability for 1991.

Program pays anglers to fish

Anglers who fish in nine reservoirs or reaches along the Columbia and Snake rivers can earn a $3 reward for each northern squawfish caught and turned over to WDW employees at check stations at designated river access spots.

The reward program will include fish caught in the Bonneville Dam tailrace, the Bonneville, Dalles, John Day and McNary pools on the Columbia and Ice Harbor, Lower Monumental, Little Goose and Lower Granite pools on the Snake river.

Starting May 24, WDW creel clerks will be stationed at Hamilton Island boat ramp, The Fishery at Covert's landing marina, Cascade Locks marina, Bingen marina, LePage state park, Plymouth boat ramp, Central Ferry state park, Chief Timothy state park and the Greenbelt boat ramp.

State Trails Plan

The Washington State Trails Plan outlines state policy and coordinates statewide recreational trails with local, state and federal management.

Goals of the plan include: developing 50 percent more city and county trail miles statewide by the year 2000; completing the Cross-State Trail by the year 2000; reducing state and federal trail maintenance backlogs by 30 percent per agency by 1995; increasing the miles of trails in semi-primitive and other remote settings; and strengthening existing funding while creating new funding sources for trail maintenance, construction and reconstruction.

Copies of the Washington State Trails Plan are available from the Interagency Committee for Outdoor Recreation, 4800 Capitol Blvd., Tumwater, Wash. 98504-5611; phone (206) 753-7140.

Land use development a threat to wildlife?

Washington Department of Wildlife habitat biologist Rollie Geppert told city and county land use planners attending the 1991 joint spring planning conference in Wenatchee that, "Land use development and wildlife are not mutually exclusive. Through careful planning, it is possible to have both responsible growth and healthy fish and wildlife populations." Geppert said that planning for wildlife needs will be among the biggest challenges facing land use planners in the '90s.

Geppert directs the agency's state-of-the-art scientific initiative to identify and map Washington's most important wildlife habitats and species, called the Priority Habitat and Species program, the first effort of its type in Washington history.

He says the information can be a major help to land use planners as they work to comply with the 1990 Growth Management Act. If money is appropriated, the information will be available through a computerized mapping data base being developed by the WDW. About a third of the state has already been integrated into the computerized system, and the remainder will be in the next year or so.

Using a catalogue of available maps, planners can access maps and information that can help them make critical decisions on balancing the needs of wildlife and people.

"We want to work with local planners to achieve this balance," Geppert said, "but don't plan on any state agency doing it for you.... We don't have the people or the budget for that."

"City and county planners control the use of 55 percent of the land in the state and that puts them in the wildlife management business," Geppert said. "Planning ahead will ensure that wildlife will be around for future generations while avoiding problem situations.... Habitat is the key to wildlife survival, but planning ahead and cooperation may well be the key to the survival of the habitat."

Deadline for antlerless hunt

Hunters who want a chance in a drawing for limited numbers of special antlerless or either-sex deer and elk hunting permits must submit their completed applications to the Washington Department of Wildlife by August 1.

Interested hunters should pick up a copy of the 1991-92 Hunting Seasons and Rules pamphlet at a license dealer or WDW office and study the information now to meet the application deadline.

Drawings for the permits are by computer and all applicants will be notified of the results through the mail by September 15.

Hunter education class

A hunter education training class will start on July 15 at the Swede Hill Fire Station in Rosedale. Pre-registration is required and the class is limited to 25 students.

Washington state requires all first-time hunters under 18 to complete a hunter education class in order to purchase a hunting license. Although the course is designed to educate new and inexperienced hunters, it is open to all interested individuals. Parents are especially encouraged to attend all training classes.

There is a $2, non-refundable fee payable at the time of registration to cover volunteer instructors' out-of-pocket costs. For more information please contact the Washington Department of Wildlife at 753-4476.

It's the law: leave wildlife in the wild

Regardless of good intentions, removing wildlife from the wild and holding it in captivity is a misdemeanor. Depending on the county where the violation occurs, that can result in a fine of from $75 to $150.

The law is there to protect wildlife, since few people other than state-certified rehabilitators and veterinarians know how to properly care for wild animals. Removing wildlife from their natural surroundings and foods often results in their early death. The end result is the same as if the animal had been killed by a poacher.

But the law also protects people. Young animals can be dangerous as they struggle to escape. Sharp teeth or flailing hooves can damage "rescuer" and "orphan" alike.

Young animals that are genuinely orphaned or injured must be turned over to a state-certified wildlife rehabilitator for treatment and release back to the wild. The best course of action is to leave the animal where it was found, move out of the area, and report the location and the incident to the WDW or local authorities.

Taxes up, exemptions too

Key Peninsula residents recently received notices of a change in their assessed valuation. The assessors use an extensive computer program to monitor property values throughout the county, and reassess property periodically to correspond with changes in the real estate market. However, there is a built-in cap of 6% on this process.

The 1991 Legislative session raised Citizen/Disabled Persons property tax exemptions. Seniors or disabled persons with income up to $26,000 can apply for 100% exemption from all excess or special levies, excluding gains from the sale of a principal residence, which used to be counted as part of annual income. The age of eligibility is now 61 or older on January 1 of the year the application is filed. Homeowners 61 or older with a combined disposable income of $30,000 or less qualify for the deferral program, which allows the postponement of property tax and/or special assessment up to 80% of the equity value in the residence.

To receive an application by mail, call 591-7117. Applications may also be picked up in person between 8:30 am and 4:30 pm Monday through Friday at the Assessor-Treasurer's Office, at 2401 South 35th Street.

Park board positions will be open

Any registered voter residing in the Key Peninsula Park District who wishes to run for the position of park commissioner is encouraged to apply between July 22 and July 26, 1991.

Three of the five positions will be available. Each of the three positions will be for four years.

The Key Peninsula Park Board Commissioners run the operations of the park district, which includes the Key Peninsula Civic Center and Volunteer Park.

Commissioners plan and operate programs and administer the financial affairs of both facilities. The Key Peninsula Civic Center Association, a non-profit organization, currently holds a contract to manage the Civic Center and park board commissioners work in conjunction with that organization.

This year, the park district began sponsoring its own softball league.

For more information on how to file for office, call the Pierce County Elections Office at 591-7430, or Tim Kezele at 884-4538.

Drive-by fire service?

by Hugh McMillan

Firefighter Chuck West left the Key Peninsula Fire Department's Key Center Headquarters' station at about 8:30 in the morning last Wednesday, after getting off work.

While on his way home, he passed an oncoming older model Chevrolet Nova and noticed that the back end of the Nova was on fire.

Reversing course, West radioed an alert to the Fire Department, and hurried to overtake the Nova, flashing his lights and honking his horn at the driver, who was obviously unaware of the situation.

About this time, a fire engine from Key Center approached from the opposite direction with lights flashing and sirens screaming. The Nova driver dutifully pulled off onto the shoulder and as soon as the engine passed, he resumed his by now flaming trip, unaware that the vehicle he had pulled over for was on its way to him.

Thanks to the wonder of radio, arrangements were made to block off the highway at Key Center.

Chief Horace Kanno, secretary/firefighter Mary Ramsdell, and other on-duty fire personnel ran onto the highway carrying fire extinguishers and signalling the Nova to stop.

West pulled up yelling for the driver to, "Get out of the car!" to the extremely surprised driver just as the fire engine again arrived on the scene.

Firefighters from the engine quickly got the fire under control to the cheers of a by now large group of excited spectators.

The fire apparently was caused by an overheated exhaust muffler which melted through the plastic underside of the Nova and ignited flammable items in the trunk.

Asked for comment, Chief Kanno remarked, "Life goes on," to which Mary Ramsdell added, "Just another day in the life of the firefighter."

KPFD recommends that you have your vehicular exhaust system checked regularly.
