RESEARCHING YOUR TACOMA NEIGHBORHOOD

A neighborhood can be as small as a few homes clustered about a culdesac or as large as Tacoma's "South End". Some neighborhoods are defined by geography; ravines, streams or major streets forming definite boundaries. Others are defined by a common heritage of ethnicity, occupation or lifestyle. Subdivisions, housing project and other planned developments are another type of neighborhood. Neighborhoods also evolve over time, their size and identity responding to changing times.

Most of all, neighborhoods are about people. All of us play a role in the shaping life of our community. Neighbors are what make a neighborhood.

How does one go about researching the history of a neighborhood? The Tacoma Neighborhoods Index is a great source to start your search. The catalog and clipping files of the Tacoma Public Library can provide others answers. The following are some questions to consider:

- What are the approximate boundaries of your neighborhood? Does geography play a role? Sanborn Fire Insurance Maps, property ownership maps, road maps or topographical maps may provide answers.
- What are the major streets in your neighborhood? When were they built? When were they paved? Who are they named after?
- What schools are located in your neighborhood? When where they built? For the record by Winnifred Olsen is an excellent history of the Tacoma School District.
- What are the major churches? When were they established?
- Are there well known houses, buildings or other landmarks in the neighborhood? Search the Tacoma House and Building Index and the Polk City Directory for information. The Tacoma Cultural Resource Survey is another source to consult.

- Does your neighborhood contain a major park or recreation area? What is its history?
- What have been the major businesses or industries in the neighborhood? Was there a business organization such as the Sixth Avenue Businessmen's Club? Does it still exist? Have local workers belonged to a particular labor union?
- Has your neighborhood had its own improvement club or other community organization? Did the group have its own clubhouse? Which fraternal organizations or social clubs were located in your area? What community organizations exist today?
- Did your neighborhood once have its own post office? Postmarked Washington, Pierce County by Guy R. Reed is a comprehensive guide to local postal history.
- What role did transportation play in the growth of your neighborhood? Did a street car line serve the area?
- Is your neighborhood made up of smaller sections or sub-neighborhoods such as individual additions, subdivisions or housing projects? Is it part of a larger neighborhood? As an example, Bakers Second Addition, Little Italy and the Smith and Fife Addition are all neighborhoods within the larger Hilltop Neighborhood. Each area may have its own entry in the Tacoma Neighborhoods Index.
- Did certain nationalities or ethnic groups first settle in your neighborhood? Search the U.S. Census for 1880, 1900, 1910, or 1920 for a list of residents in your area.
- Have there been certain individuals who played a key role in the life of your neighborhood? The Tacoma Public Library's Northwest People File may lead you to obituaries or other information. Long-time residents of your neighborhood may be willing to share their stories. Oral histories can help bring local history alive.
- Has your neighborhood held an annual party, parade or other celebration, such as the Browns Point Salmon Bake? How did the event begin?
- Did the neighborhood ever suffer a natural disaster such as a fire, flood or landslide?

- Has your neighborhood had its own newspaper, such as the Sixth Avenue Shopper or the South Tacoma Star? Do copies still exist? The early society pages of the Tacoma Daily Ledger and Tacoma News Tribune can also be good sources for neighborhood news. The Sunday editions often included neighborhood columns.
- Are old photographs available of your neighborhood? The Tacoma Public Library and the Washington State Historical Society hold wonderful and expansive historic photograph collections.
- How does your neighborhood's history relate to the overall history of the City of Tacoma? Did it begin along a new street car line in the 1890s, during the wartime housing boom of the 1940s or during the rush to suburbia in the 1950s? What was happening in the state and in the nation when your neighborhood began? Major histories of our area include: South on the Sound by Murray Morgan, Tacoma: its history and its builders by Herbert Hunt and History of Pierce County by William P. Bonney.
- Every neighborhood has a unique story to tell, its own history to discover. May your search prove interesting and rewarding!
