Dear Nanny

Thanks for your good letter, and enclosure which I am returning herewith, signed by myself - no forgery. The business is OK by me.

Got the sweetest Valentine. Some Chinese girl sent me the most gorgeous, loveliest, divinest sweetest picture of herself. except that she casts her eyes badly. I think she lives in Wilmington.

Which would also be an attraction to draw me to Stans birthday party but will be unable to come owing to the fact that I am terrified busy doing nothing. So you must absolutely come up the following week end, or middle of the week if more convenient, as I still plan to leave on the 7th of March. When the topping thaw comes I'll try to make a pilgrimage to Wilmington: but before then let me see you here.

My wrestlers and I have finally appeared in the last number of Esquire. Look us up!

The book for Doubleday Doran is coming along and I may also do one for Viking Press. And vague ideas about doing a book for adults are beginning to congeal, and The Limited Editions Club is still "considering" "All Men Are Brothers" with my illustrations. When I'm on the train some one may decide something.

Hastily yet still yours
Scho
