Briefing Items

1. 19-0545 Harvard Bloomberg Innovation Project Update

Mayor Woodards provided opening remarks and introduced Melanie Harding, Senior Policy Analyst, and Bradley Loetzke, Harvard Bloomberg Innovation Project Manager, City Manager's Office. Mayor Woodards provided an overview of the Harvard Bloomberg Innovation Project, including background on the City's Leadership Institute, the "City Innovation Track", assistance provided by the project, and the City's focus on public engagement and building trust in the area of public safety. Elizabeth Pauli, City Manager, provided an overview of the City Innovation Project focus, methods, and theories. Ms. Harding and Mr. Loetzke reviewed the project team members, difference between traditional project methods and the Innovation Project method, the power of stories gathered in qualitative interviews, the process and nonlinear model, current project status, and next steps. Ms. Pauli and Mayor Woodards concluded with comments about the iterative process and progress toward the City's goals.

Discussion ensued regarding public safety, Project PEACE, implementation of project prototypes, police presence, public perception and interaction with police officers, project length and support, examples from other cities, measuring results, senior citizen feedback, and community interactions.

2. 19-0546 Community Workforce Agreement Taskforce Recommendations and Report

At approximately 12:56 p.m., Tadd Wille, Assistant City Manager, provided opening remarks on the Community Workforce Agreement (CWA) Taskforce recommendations and report, and introduced Karen Reed, Committee Facilitator. Ms. Reed introduced Deputy City Attorney Steve Victor, as well as members of the CWA Taskforce in attendance at the study session, including Co-Chairs Arti O'Brien, owner, Advanced Government Services, Inc., and Mark Martinez, Executive Secretary, Pierce County Building Trades.

Ms. Reed presented the mission; membership; process; timeline; data reviewed; definition of a CWA; Seattle's experience; review of the Local Employment and Apprenticeship (LEAP) training and Small Business Enterprise (SBE) programs; Tacoma Housing Authority strategy; the draft CWA for Tacoma; recommendations; excerpts from the executive summary; recommended priorities; committee consensus; member preferences, including must-haves, strong opposition, and other comments; comparison of responses based on group; and other recommendations, categories, and ratings. She concluded with a review of the overall conclusions, including support of the City's goals, disagreement on methods, and options moving forward; and a review of minority statements.

Discussion ensued regarding existing programs; impacts of Washington State Initiative I-1000; project cost thresholds; relationships between the City, contractors, and unions; Taskforce goals and results; potential reimbursement costs; priority hiring and priority dispatch programs; affirmative action versus preferential treatment; alternatives; and interest for further Council discussion.
